The Government Shutdown from an Archives Point of View

Posted on October 14, 2013 by Danna C. Bell | 3 Comments

In upcoming Off the Record blog posts I will post about my speech and attendance at the Cultural Heritage Symposium that took place at the Library of Congress, my trip to Ohio including presentations at the Society of Ohio Archivists conference and at Miami University and my interactions with members of the Association of Research Librarians at their recent conference.

However I did want to take a moment to acknowledge my colleagues that work for the federal government who are currently furloughed due to the government shutdown. Whatever your political affiliation I know how frustrating it is to be unable to serve your patrons, complete projects and on a more personal level do the job you love and make sure that the bills are paid and that there is a roof over your head and food on your table.

The Librarian of Congress, James Billington, sent a message to the furloughed employees of the Library and I want to share it with you:

"In these uncertain days, I want all of you to know how much your expertise and commitment is valued by me personally and by the great institution that we all serve. Across the Library — whether you work as a curator, on our facilities crews

Born at Cherbunt

I saw her first on Oct 1878; I wooed
her for over a year before I won her; we announced on Feb 16th;

on Oct 27th of the same year we were best to try to get me to take action which would have ensured Payn's retention and would have resulted therefore in a very imposing triumph for rascality. They have often shown themselves the enemies of good government, but in this case I do not think they are even to be credited with good intentions. They were no more anxious to see dishonesty rebuked than a professional prohibitionist is to see the liquor law decently administered.

With warm regards,

Faithfully yours,

Dear Harry:--

Your letter of the 25th really pleased me. Of course, I shall not feel real easy until the vote has actually been taken, but apparently everything is now all right. I have always been fond of the West African proverb: "Speak softly and carry a big stick; you will go far." If I had not carried the big stick the Organization would not have gotten behind me, and if I had yelled and blustered as Parkhurst and the similar dishonest lunatics desired, I would not have had ten votes. But I was entirely good humored, kept perfectly cool and steadfastly refused to listen to anything save that Payn had to go, and that I would take none but a thoroughly upright and capable man in his place. Unless there is some cataclysm, these tactics will be crowned with success. As for the Evening Post, Parkhurst

On January 2, 2014, the Library of Congress, the Children's Book Council, and Every Child a Reader announced the appointment of Kate DiCamillo as the fourth National Ambassador for Young People's Literature for 2014-2015. Librarian of Congress James H. Billington offered the following remarks on DiCamillo's appointment:

Kate DiCamillo is not only one of our finest writers for young people, but also an outstanding advocate for the importance of reading.

An inauguration ceremony, presided by Librarian of Congress James H. Billington and attended by 2012-13 National Ambassador Walter Dean Myers and 2008-09 National Ambassador Jon Scieszka, took place on Friday, January 10, 2014 at 11 a.m. in Room LJ-119 of the Library of Congress's Thomas Jefferson Building. [\[View recording of inaugural ceremony.\]](#)

For her two-year term as National Ambassador for Young People's Literature, Kate DiCamillo traveled across America to promote her platform, "Stories Connect Us," which engaged towns, schools, hospitals, community centers—anywhere people can gather and talk about books they have read together. She encouraged reading communities to explore how literature for all ages can change how they see one another.

Christian Endeavor Officers.

The following officers have been elected by the Young People's Christian Endeavor Society of the Anacostia Baptist Church, to serve during the ensuing year: E. W. Purifoy, president; Miss Ada Dean, vice president; Miss Gertrude King, secretary; Miss Emma Hollows, treasurer; Miss Vivian Cookman, organist; Miss Catherine Bowman, assistant organist.

Miss Elizabeth A. Fitzpatrick, chief supervisor of the female department of the Government Hospital for the Insane, spent her vacation visiting points of interest in France, England, and Ireland. She was abroad about two months.

The efforts of teachers and pupils of the Turney public school, on Nichols avenue, to make attractive the premises of the building have been highly successful. The yard is filled with a variety of flowers and vines, and the passerby can easily perceive that much labor has been spent on the development of the plants.

Young People's Services.

Last Monday a large number of children formed the congregation at the Emmanuel Baptist Church at Garfield, when Young People's services were held during the day. At the 11 o'clock service the Rev. J. A. Taylor spoke on the importance of young people in church work. At the afternoon and evening services literary and musical services were held. The pastor and congregation of Allan's A. M. E. Chapel, of Garfield, attended the afternoon service in a body married in the rectory of St. Teresa's Church on Wednesday. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. George A. Dougherty.

Choir Boys Outing.

A happy lot of choir boys assembled Tuesday morning at Emmanuel Church, Anacostia, from which place they set out in a body for the boat which took them to Colonial Beach, where they are now spending their annual vacation. The boys are quartered in a cottage near the water, known as "Choir Lodge," and there they have the good times to which they look forward every year. The party is in charge of Milford Mitts, organist and choirmaster of Emmanuel Church.

James Feddon and family have removed to their home at 24 Jefferson street, Anacostia.

A physician was hastily summoned to the home of Paul Sinclair, a five-year-old boy, at 251 Washington street, Anacostia, several evenings ago, when the child's parents discovered that he had accidentally swallowed a quantity of coal oil. The boy was seriously affected and only the prompt efforts of the physician relieved him.

Edward T. Davis, the director of the choir at the Government Hospital for the Insane, is now spending his annual vacation in Pennsylvania.

The children of the Bell Home, at the head of Franklin street, in Anacostia, are spending their annual outing at Colonial Beach.

After an enjoyable visit with the family of the Rev. Charles O. Isaac, at the parsonage of the Anacostia Methodist Episcopal Church, Miss Minnie morning after an extended vacation.

Horse "Bill" Retired.

No. 2 Chemical Company has lost one of its members. The big white horse Bill, having been placed on the retirement list. Bill had been in the service several years and understood the signals as well as any member of the company.

On the west side of Brightwood avenue, between Alice and Webster streets in Roberson's subdivision, Charles Halum, contractor, will build in the near future ten semi-detached houses of modern design, which will add considerable beauty to the locality. About $50,000 will be expended.

Emerson street in Brightwood is being cut through to Fourteenth street.

Population Increase.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles C. Clark, of Fairmont street, Brightwood, are to be congratulated on the arrival of a fine baby boy. Mrs. Clark was formerly Miss Mary D. Swingle, well known throughout the Northeast.

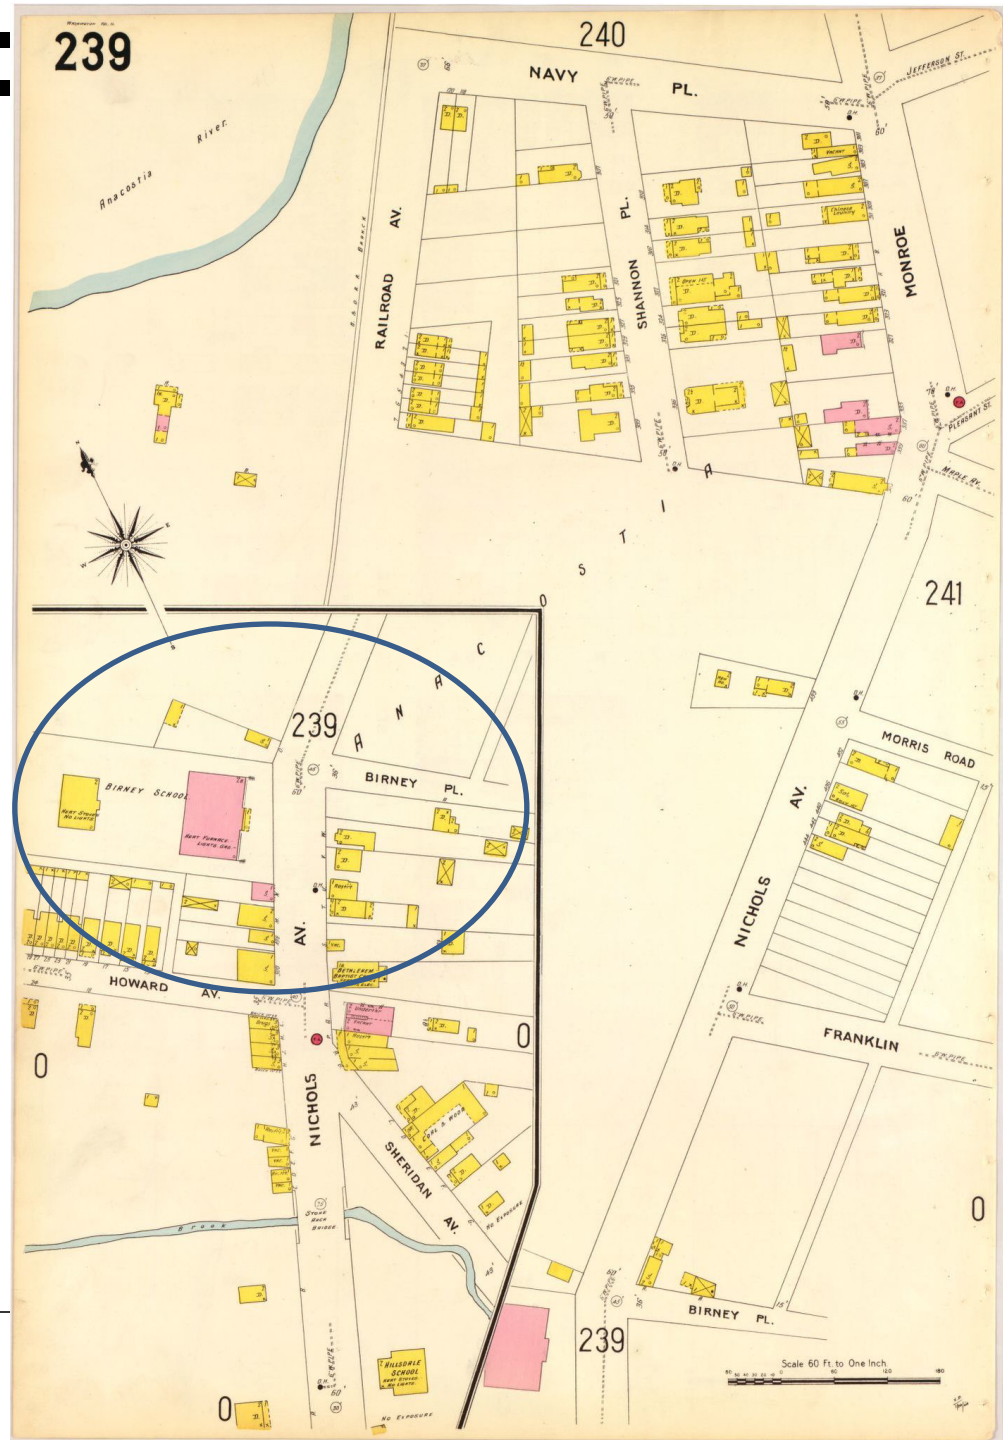

The Misses Higgins, of Niagara street, who have been very ill recently, are much improved this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Copenhagen, of Winchester, Va., are visiting their daughter and family, Mr. and Mrs. Cary King, of Illinois avenue, and will remain a week or so.

Mrs. White gave another song service last Sunday with her trained choir, aided by Miss Middleton, as organist.

The Historic American Buildings Survey (HABS) and the Historic American Engineering Record (HAER) collections are among the largest and most heavily used in the Prints and Photographs Division of the Library of Congress. Since 2000, documentation from the Historic American Landscapes Survey (HALS) has been added to the holdings. The collections document achievements in architecture, engineering, and landscape design in the United States and its territories through a comprehensive range of building types, engineering technologies, and landscapes, including examples as diverse as the Pueblo of Acoma, houses, windmills, one-room schools, the Golden Gate Bridge, and buildings designed by Frank Lloyd Wright.

HOWARD ROAD HISTORIC DISTRICT

HABS No. DC-395

LOCATION: Blocks 1000-1100, Howard Road
Washington, District of Columbia

PRESENT OWNER: Multiple Ownership

PRESENT OCCUPANT: Multiple Occupancy

SIGNIFICANCE: The eleven residential structures in the Howard Road Historic District are the products of a process of urbanization in which a planned, semi-rural black community evolved into an urban neighborhood. Howard Road was originally developed as part of the Barry Farm project, a model community for freed slaves, initiated by the Freedmen's Bureau in 1867. By the turn of the century, many of the original one-acre lots had been subdivided in response to improved transportation and to city-wide population growth. Housing constructed here in the late 19th and early 20th centuries was distinctly urban, characterized by narrow, side-hall plans suitable for the narrow street frontages of the new lots. In the Howard Road District, housing from the 1880's to the 1940's clearly illustrates this gradual urbanization, accomplished in large part by local residents

Nichols Avenue Elementary School/Old Birney School, African American Heritage Trail

James G. Birney Elementary School (1889) was the city's first public school for blacks in Hillside. Prior to its construction, Hillside residents organized and funded their own schools. It was named to honor James Gillespie Birney, a white Kentucky abolitionist who had liberated his own slaves and published the anti-slavery newspaper, The Philanthropist, in Cincinnati, Ohio.

In 1901 the current Italian Renaissance building was constructed, and the original building was used as an annex until it was razed in 1914. The new building was also used as a community center for adult education, civic association meetings, and a branch of the DC Public Library. The building was renamed Nichols Avenue Elementary School in 1962 after Nichols Avenue, the original name of Martin Luther King, Jr. Avenue. Community activism saved the school from demolition in 1972.

A third Birney School was constructed at 2501 Martin Luther King, Jr. Avenue, SE.

Teaching with Primary Sources Partner Program

Welcome

The Library of Congress awards grants to a wide variety of organizations, including K-12 schools, universities, literacy organizations, centers, clubs, historical societies, museums, libraries, associations of home-schooling parents and caregivers, honor societies, and other community, civic, professional, state, regional, and national groups that expand the body of innovative strategies, tools, and materials for meaningful teaching and learning with Library of Congress materials.

TPS grants support the Library's mission to engage, inspire, and inform Congress and the American people with a universal and enduring source of knowledge and creativity.

About the Program

Since 2006, the Library has awarded Teaching with Primary Sources (TPS) grants to build a nationwide network of organizations that deliver educational programming, and create teaching materials and tools based on the Library's digitized primary sources and other online resources. Each year members of this network, called the TPS Consortium,

The TPS Consortium Journal

The TPS Consortium Journal is a peer-reviewed, online publication created by members of the Teaching with Primary Sources (TPS) Consortium. Published semiannually, each themed issue focuses on approaches to teaching effectively with Library of Congress digitized primary sources.
